DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 6, 7, 13 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Baudry et al. (Pat. No. 6,461,375).

Note in particular col. 5, lines 40-44 and col. 6, lines 12-22.

Regarding claims 6 and 13 in particular, since by definition an electromagnetic field is the result of a charge in motion (i.e., electrical energy), the examiner considers the device of Baudry et al. to utilize electrical energy in stimulating the median nerve and associated nerve structures in the wrist.

Regarding claims 7 and 14, the examiner considers the device of Baudry et al. to be an "electro-acupuncture" device by virtue of the fact that it stimulates an acupuncture point via an electromagnetic field.

Art Unit: 3762

3. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mann et al. (Pat. No. 6,282,443)

The applied reference has a common inventor with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

Note in particular col. 2, lines 30-48.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Baudry et al. (Pat. No. 6,461,375).

Regarding claim 1, while Baudry et al. do not explicitly refer to the ventral side of the wrist, they do teach that the device may be employed at a variety of locations including the wrist (col. 6, lines 12-24), and that the particular point of stimulation depends upon the desired effect (col. 3, line 46 – col. 4, line 2). As is old and well-known in the acupressure/acupuncture/electrical stimulation arts, the body contains a variety of points where stimulation may invoke positive treatment results (note col. 1, lines 13-28). The ventral side of the wrist is a well-known landmark for nerve stimulation (said landmark being designated the P6 point by prior artisans). In view of these teachings, any artisan desiring to treat vertigo or dizziness as suggested by Baudry et al. in col. 5, lines 40-47, would have seen the obviousness of delivering the stimulation signal to the ventral side of the wrist.

6. Claims 8-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Mann et al..

The applied reference has a common inventor with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art only under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) might be overcome by: (1) a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not an invention "by another"; (2) a showing of a date of invention for the claimed subject matter of the application which corresponds to subject matter disclosed but not claimed in the reference, prior to the effective U.S. filing date of the reference under 37 CFR 1.131; or (3) an oath or declaration under 37 CFR 1.130 stating that the application and reference are currently owned by the same party and that the inventor named in the application is the prior inventor under 35 U.S.C. 104, together with a terminal disclaimer in accordance with 37 CFR 1.321(c). For applications filed on or after November 29, 1999, this rejection might also be overcome by showing that the subject matter of the reference and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person. See MPEP § 706.02(I)(1) and § 706.02(I)(2).

Although Mann et al. do not explicitly discuss a method of treating vertigo, they do suggest that the method may be helpful in alleviating discomforts such as dizziness and lower back pain (col. 2, lines 35 and 36). Since vertigo by definition relates to a feeling of dizziness, those of ordinary skill in the art given the teaching that the device of Mann et al. can alleviate this problem, would have seen the obviousness of employing said device in the treatment of vertigo.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
8. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Kennedy Schaezle whose telephone number is (703) 308-2211. The examiner can normally be reached on M-F from 9:30 - 6:00.
